Power lunch

A Chinese investment fund manager won the chance to have lunch with U.S. billionaire Warren Buffett by bidding more than $2 million in the most expensive charity auction ever held on eBay.

Zhao Danyang of the Hong Kong-based Pureheart China Growth Investment Fund won the auction. The auction ended Friday, and the winning bid was announced Saturday. Buffett, who in 2006 announced plans to gradually give away most of his nearly $49 billion fortune to various charities and foundations, offers only one lunch a year for the Glide Foundation, which provides social services to the poor and homeless in San Francisco.

A spokeswoman for the foundation, which receives all the proceeds from the auction, identified the winner. The auction will provide a significant boost to Glide. The foundation operates on a $12 million annual budget, spokeswoman Denise Lamott said. Here's a look at the other numbers: [AP]

Work Woes

How to stick with a job that has you down

Associated Press

Sam Glenn followed some wise advice when he found himself in a bad job situation—his mother told him, first, don't quit. And second, to have a frank chat with his boss at the small computer communications firm where he worked.

Feeling trapped in an unhappy work environment is sending many people in search of solace and advice. With the economy sputtering and unemployment on the rise, these workers are trying to make the best of a bad situation rather than not have a job at all.

Experts say it's critical at such a time to not burn bridges with an employer.

"No matter how unhappy you are, it's important to come in to work with your game face on so that you can be sure of retaining your current job while you're thinking about finding another one," said Mary Crane, a Denver-based consultant to Fortune 500 companies and law firms.

Glenn, 37, of Naperville, relied on his mother's wisdom to survive a difficult first job out of college. Stuck with an overbearing, short-fused boss, he set up a meeting with him and asked if he could have someone else supervise him.

"I said, 'Look, if you want me to do better here and get you the sales you want, I need a different supervisor. I don't do well when I'm being micro-managed,'" Glenn said. "And No. 2, sometimes you yell a lot, and I don't do well with people who yell at me."

That might sound risky, but it proved a sound strategy. Inspired by that success, Glenn went on to become a workplace consultant and motivational speaker focusing on attitudes in the workplace.

"Instead of going to a job you hate every day and living with all the stress and anxiety, you need to sit down and address it with the powers that be," he said. Crane's do's and don'ts for those dissatisfied with their current positions include one that may be tough to follow: Don't let co-workers know how unhappy you are—word might get back to the bosses. That means not mentioning it in conversations, text messages or e-mails.

Some old-fashioned advice also can be helpful: Focus on a job's upside.

"The reality is that work is work, and it's not always fun," Crane said.

SURVIVING AN UNHAPPY JOB

>> Ask if you can telecommute at least once a week.

>> Make an anonymous suggestion for corporate retreats/seminars covering topics such as teamwork, anger/stress management or cultural sensitivity.

>> If you have a really boring job, ask if you can contribute in more creative ways that might be fun. For example, if you enjoy writing, volunteer to do the company newsletter (in exchange for doing less official work, of course).

>> Start using financial planning tools like mint.com or wesabe.com that allow you to quickly see your total assets and liabilities. Knowing your financial situation will give you more incentive to stick it out in a bad job.

Potential actors' strike has Hollywood sweating

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES Hollywood loves a good sequel, but here's one it could do without: Another union strike just months after the town got up and running again from a devastating walkout by writers.

The contract between the Screen Actors Guild and the Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers expires Monday, and negotiations have dragged on for weeks with no apparent headway.

SAG leaders have said they are willing to continue talking beyond the contract deadline. Yet their hard-line rhetoric and a squabble with another actors' union could put performers on the sidelines.

UNIONS CLASH

The Screen Actors Guild is a house divided. Its 120,000 members include 44,000 who also belong to the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, and leaders of the two unions are at each other's throats. AFTRA negotiated a contract similar to ones writers and directors accepted this year. SAG is holding out for a better deal.

"If you're a below-the-line worker, your blood is probably running cold, because they're the ones that took the biggest hit from the writers' strike," said Jack Kyser, chief economist for the Los Angeles Economic Development Corp., which estimates the Writers Guild of America walkout cost the town $2.5 billion in lost wages and other revenue.

A strike in July—or a potential actors' lockout if producers decided to play tough—could delay the return of many fall TV shows, which normally would be going back into production then.

Big-screen movies generally are in good shape through the early part of summer 2009, with studios rushing to finish production on most films before the actors' contract expired.

A few films such as "The Hannah Montana Movie" and Tom Hanks' "Angels & Demons" could be forced to shut down if a strike occurs.

Boys or leading men?

Several Hollywood hot shots were in town over the weekend, including Jeremy Piven, Ian Ziering, Stephen Dorff and singer Josh Kelley—but witnesses tell me some of the stars didn't seem eager to share the spotlight.

The boys-will-be-boys action started Friday night. Piven attended the wrap party for "Public Enemies" at Bon V, where Dorff, who appears in the movie, was celebrating with co-stars and crew.

I'm told partygoers were surprised when Piven walked in, because he wasn't in the movie and he and Dorff have a reputation of not getting along. "[Dorff] walked over to [Piven] and got in his face and made some snarky comment," an eyewitness said. "Piven gave him a look."

Afterward, the eyewitness said, the two stayed on opposite sides of the bar the rest of the night.

The drama didn't end there. On Saturday night, Piven hosted his annual Piven Theatre Workshop benefit at Rockit Bar and Grill. Inside the party, Piven and Kelley appeared to be friendly with each other, but the same apparently couldn't be said for Ziering, who also attended. When Kelley introduced himself to Ziering, Ziering "completely brushed" him off, according to another witness. However, after Ziering was told that Kelley is "Grey's Anatomy" star Katherine Heigl's hubby, he made nice.

Finally, Piven and Ziering ignored each other the whole night, including at the after-party at Underground, even though they sat close to each other for a long period of time. Ah, the drama!

Dinner with Depp

Meanwhile, the biggest star of "Public Enemies," Johnny Depp, wrapped filming last week. Depp filmed in Lockport on Friday evening, and I'm told it was his last scheduled Midwest shoot. Depp celebrated with a few dozen people from the movie with a private buffet dinner at Gibsons around midnight Friday. Since filming ran so late, Depp didn't make it to the other wrap party at Bon V. However, I'm told director Michael Mann and co-stars Giovanni Ribisi and Marion Cotillard all made it to Bon V.

Knocked down

Pregnancy ‘pact’ drew headlines, but teen pregnancies are at lowest level in 30 years

Chicago Tribune

NEW YORK News of a cluster of at least 17 pregnant teenagers at a small Massachusetts high school recently made headlines around the world, but it came at a time when teen pregnancies and abortions in the U.S. are at their lowest points in 30 years.

Pregnancies—whether they end in birth, miscarriage or abortion—among women age 15 to 19 dropped to 72.2 per 1,000 women in 2004, down from a peak of 117 per 1,000 women in 1990, according to the latest data compiled by New York’s Guttmacher Institute, which focuses on reproductive health research, policy analysis and education. While some 700,000 women age 15 to 19 become pregnant every year, the rate has declined 36 percent since it peaked in 1990.

The rate of abortions among teens also plummeted, to 19.8 per 1,000 women in 2004 from a high of 43.5 per 1,000 in 1988.

That’s the good news.

The not-so-good news: The pregnancies at Gloucester High School in Massachusetts spotlight a potentially bigger problem. Despite decades of improvement and for reasons yet unknown, there is statistical evidence that the drop in pregnancy rates, the age of first sexual activity and contraceptive use among teens stalled after 2001.

The exception may be in the teen birthrate. After a 14-year decline, the birthrate, meaning the number of live births, among women age 15 to 19 rose 3 percent in 2006 to 41.9 per 1,000 women from 40.5 per 1,000 women in 2005, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Until more data are compiled, it is unclear whether the 2006 uptick in births was an isolated blip or the harbinger of a more significant and negative change on the teen reproductive landscape, according to David Landry, a senior research associate at the Guttmacher Institute.

At this point it appears likely that the unusual number of pregnant teens in Gloucester is an aberration. Time magazine’s report that the girls made a “pact” to deliberately become pregnant remains in dispute. Such a pact was denied by Gloucester Mayor Carolyn Kirk; by Lindsey Oliver, one of the pregnant students, who appeared on ABC’s “Good Morning America”; and in the Gloucester Daily Times by two other student mothers. In a statement issued Thursday, high school Principal Joseph Sullivan said he could not recall using the term “pact” in his interview with Time.

U.S. leads in teen births

The U.S. still leads developed nations in the rate of pregnancies, births and abortions among teenage mothers, but it has whittled the numbers dramatically through greater accessibility to and use of contraception, the tendency of teens to delay sexual activity longer than they did in the past and education programs, according to data compiled by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

Nonetheless, the Gloucester cases raise a question about why, in a time when most sexually active teens use contraception, some 17 young women became pregnant.

Some indicted the glamorization of pregnancy out of wedlock in popular culture, citing the recent pregnancy of actress Jamie Lynn Spears, as well as such popular films as “Juno” and “Knocked Up.”

“The fact of the matter would be you’d have to be pretty Pollyanna-ish to think the popular culture doesn’t shape the social agenda for kids,” Bill Albert, chief program officer for the National Campaign to Prevent Teen and Unplanned Pregnancy, a Washington-based private, non-partisan and non-profit research group. “On the other hand, over the past couple of decades we have seen extraordinary progress. Teens have become more responsible” despite such popular culture influences, he said.

Others, including Tony Perkins, president of the conservative Family Research Council, blamed the Gloucester situation on the availability of a free day-care center at the high school and comprehensive sex education, which includes information about contraception and abortion, as opposed to the abstinence-only-until-marriage education programs funded by the federal government.

‘NOT AN IDEOLOGICAL QUESTION’

Cecile Richards, president of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, thought it unlikely that on-site day care would prompt a student to get pregnant. It is more likely, she said, that the government’s sole emphasis on and funding for abstinence-only programs over the past decade has contributed to the stall in progress.

“This is not an ideological question. You have to look at the data, and the data says abstinence-only has been a complete failure and a waste of money,” Richards said.

Several studies, including a nine-year study by Mathematica Policy Research mandated by Congress and released last year, concluded that students in abstinence-only programs were no more likely to delay sexual activity, have fewer sexual partners or use contraception than students in comprehensive sex education programs. Studies also have found that students receiving comprehensive sex education were no more likely to have sex than those in abstinence-only programs.

PRIDE and joy

Turnout at Chicago's Pride Parade was higher than it has been in years past, as many participants wanted to celebrate California's recent decision to overturn a gay marriage ban, organizers said Sunday.

Parade organizer Richard Pfeiffer estimated about 450,000 people—approximately 25,000 more than 2007—attended the 39th annual celebration Sunday in Boystown. Chicago police didn't immediately have an official crowd estimate available.

Celebrations were slightly hampered when a dancer fell off a float and cracked a leg bone. Pfeiffer said the parade was stalled for nearly an hour while she was transported to the hospital.

Also, at least one person was arrested during the celebration. Chicago police spokeswoman JoAnn Taylor said a 39-year-old Aurora man was charged after a fight with another man.

The theme of the march was "Live, Love, Be Proud." [AP]

Poor marks for CTA

Safety review: Trains need immediate fixes

Chicago Tribune

The best that can be said about the level of safety on the CTA rail system is that riders are not putting their lives in jeopardy.

That's far from high praise, but it's the basic conclusion of an on-site safety review of the CTA rail system commissioned by the Regional Transportation Authority, which has oversight authority over the transit agency.

In essence, CTA trains are safe enough to ride, but many upgrades are necessary and should not be postponed, the RTA concluded in evaluating 14 key areas.

Between January and mid-August of 2007, 13 train derailments and five train collisions occurred in CTA rail yards, according to the safety review.

Another accident occurred the same week that the on-site review was conducted last year when two trains collided in front of the passenger platform at the 54th/Cermak terminal on the Blue Line. At the time of the crash, the trains were being coupled, a practice that the review advised should not be done in the platform area.

The safety audit found that the CTA is not conducting enough emergency response drills and that its construction-safety performance on the $530 million Brown Line reconstruction project "is not satisfactory."

Train operators also were observed at stations pulling their heads back into the control cabs before all doors were closed. The operators are required to keep their heads out the cab window while the doors are closing to ensure that no passengers become trapped and dragged.

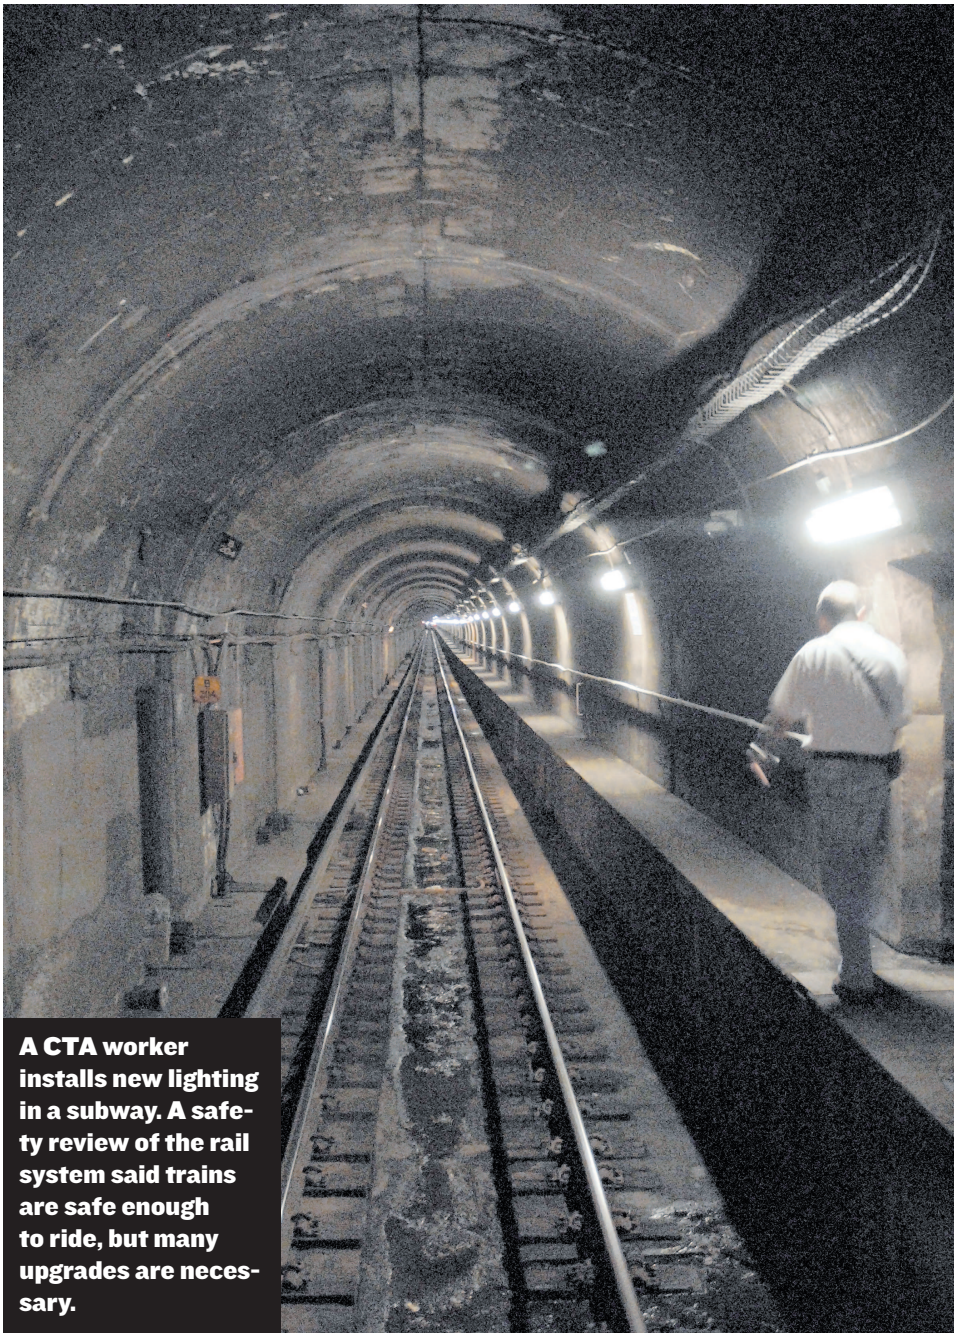

It's not exactly the report card the Daley administration would want to receive on the CTA as Chicago competes to host the 2016 Olympic Games against cities boasting world-class transportation systems.

In terms of the areas of concern that the CTA should concentrate on first, the answer is all of the above.

"When it comes to safety, prioritizing is not applicable," said Grace Gallucci, an RTA deputy executive director who oversaw the audit, which was conducted by consultants. "Everything is important."

Bringing about improvement requires changing the culture at the CTA, Gallucci said.

"Some of it has to do with the over-

A CTA worker installs new lighting in a subway. A safety review of the rail system said trains are safe enough to ride, but many upgrades are necessary.

IN A NUTSHELL

The CTA is doing a poor job of identifying hazardous conditions leading to rail accidents, and the agency should be "more rigorous" in taking corrective action, the audit said.

all culture toward track maintenance and inspections," she said. "We are suggesting that the safety practices are not perfect and should be strengthened."

CTA President Ron Huberman said Friday he is "working through the issues" identified in the report. "Corrective actions in many areas are complete," he said.

The CTA this month submitted a status report to the RTA briefly summarizing corrective actions taken so far and pointing out instances in which the CTA disagreed with the RTA's findings.

In other instances, the CTA blamed insufficient funds to implement changes. For instance, the RTA pointed out that the CTA dropped its requirement that rail employees working in safety-sensitive positions regularly undergo medical examinations. The CTA said it cannot afford the $1.6 million annual cost of the exams.

RTA officials said they don't consider the CTA status report acceptable.

"We are still waiting for a formal response," said RTA spokeswoman Diane Palmer.

Arson investigator shot early Sunday, prompting new safety guidelines

Chicago Tribune

After a lone arson investigator was shot early Sunday as he poked around an alley where a Molotov cocktail had been tossed against a house, the Chicago Fire department will change its policy and have investigators work in pairs, the fire commissioner said.

The shooting was the first time that a firefighter had been shot and wounded since about 1968, said Fire Commissioner Raymond Orozco. Paramedics have been shot at over the years, but department officials could not recall any being hit.

The 18-year department veteran, who has not been identified, was in an alley behind a home in the 2900 block of East 80th Place at about 4:35 a.m., working in uniform, when he was shot in the side and had to call for help on his radio.

He was in serious but stable condition Sunday afternoon, Orozco said. The 45-year-old investigator had been working arson cases for three years.

"Our greatest concern is for his speedy recovery," Orozco said, adding that the injuries did not appear to be life-threatening.

Neither police nor Orozco could say whether the investigator was targeted.

The Molotov cocktail was thrown at a window of a 2 1/2 story home at about 3:30 a.m., but it bounced off a storm window and burned itself out in the alley, according to Orozco and a resident of the home, Brenda Dean.

Dean, 45, lives there with her 71-year-old mother, five children and a grandchild. She had no idea who would try to start a fire, but said the neighborhood has been rocked in recent weeks by seemingly random gang violence.

"Me and my mother don't have enemies," Dean said. "There's been a gang rivalry going on for about a month. There's been shooting around here for almost a month. Every day. Every day."

The 18-year department veteran, who has not been identified, was in an alley behind a home in the 2900 block of East 80th Place at about 4:35 a.m., working in uniform, when he was shot in the side and had to call for help on his radio.

Online courses designed to help struggling students

While hundreds of other summer school students have been struggling to pay attention to their teachers' lectures for the past two weeks, Shavounta Hudson will be able to stop and start her lessons with the click of a mouse Monday as Chicago Public School officials launch online courses to help at-risk students.

The test program aims to use online course work to help students make up credits in core freshmen classes including math, science, English and social studies and get them on track to graduate. Students can make up either one semester or a full year.

The educators point to research showing that 9th graders who fall behind are less likely to graduate.

Students must meet at the schools from about 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. four days a week. Those who need to make up more credits also will attend afternoon classes, officials said.

Sandi Atols, a district manager, said the courses will allow students to tap into PowerPoint presentations and lectures that are paired with course work and outside reading lists.

Students also will have online instructors and teachers available to answer questions.

While students are required to have passed three out of four of the core classes to move on to sophomore year, they must make up credits for all core classes to graduate, said Paige Ponder, a drop-out-prevention manager with the district. Students must have at least 24 credits to graduate, Ponder said.

Obama works up a sweat in Hyde Park

Think you're too busy to hit the gym?

Despite a whirlwind travel schedule, Barack Obama always seems to find time to squeeze in a workout.

The senator dashed to a gym near his South Side home for a short workout Sunday during his day off from the campaign trail. Obama sported black track pants, a gray T-shirt and a White Sox baseball cap as he headed to the gym inside the Regents Park apartment building.

There's no word on what his Sunday workout routine was, but he emerged 30 minutes later.

Then, the 46-year-old headed north to shoot hoops with his daughters Malia, 9, and Sasha, 7, at the East Bank Club in River North. His wife, Michelle, came along as well.

Before the workout, Obama waved to neighbors and shook hands as he returned home from getting a haircut at the Hyde Park Hair Salon.

Barber Ishmael Alamin said Obama's a regular client of the shop, where he has gotten his hair cut for at least 14 years.

Saturday's trim was "just a regular clipper cut," said Alamin, who was working in the shop while Obama got the haircut.

Obama returns to the campaign trail Monday with an appearance in Independence, Mo.

Man held in beating death

A man accused of fatally beating his nursing home roommate to death with a clock radio was ordered held Sunday in lieu of $500,000 bail. Solomon Owasanoye, 50, was charged with first-degree murder in the beating death of Ivory Jackson, 78. Owasanoye has been diagnosed with dementia, said Assistant State's Atty. Shelley Keane. An attorney representing Owasanoye said he has been living in Chicago for six years and previously was a cabdriver in the city.

Teacher charged with battery

A Chicago State instructor and National Guard officer was charged with felony battery for an incident involving his wife's 94-year-old great-aunt, authorities said Sunday. Christopher Bonds, 41, and the woman were involved in a dispute at Bonds' home over property issues, said Assistant State's Atty. Shelley Keane. Bonds' family and defense attorney say the allegations are "baseless." The older woman suffers from episodes of dementia, said Bonds' wife, Zephye. She said her husband did no more than grab the woman's wrists after she began acting erratic and swearing.

Roseland man shot, killed on porch

A Roseland man was shot and killed early Sunday after two men trying to buy drugs approached him in the neighborhood, police said. Harrison Ellis, 32, of the 10400 block of South Calumet Avenue was shot in the chest about 1:30 a.m. on the 10700 block of South Calumet Ave., said Chicago Police Officer Laura Kubiak. Ellis was on a porch when one of the two men fired at him, Kubiak said.

Airlines: Check it or leave it

Admit it. That chunky carry-on bag of yours would never fit into the sample box displayed outside the airport gate.

Don't expect that bag to get a free ride for long.

Checked bags are now a moneymaker for US Airways, American Airlines and United Airlines, and officials say they're going to keep a closer watch on how much you take on board as they begin their new baggage fees.

"We're planning on having extra staff where possible, especially at peak times at busy airports," US Airways spokesman Morgan Durrant said.

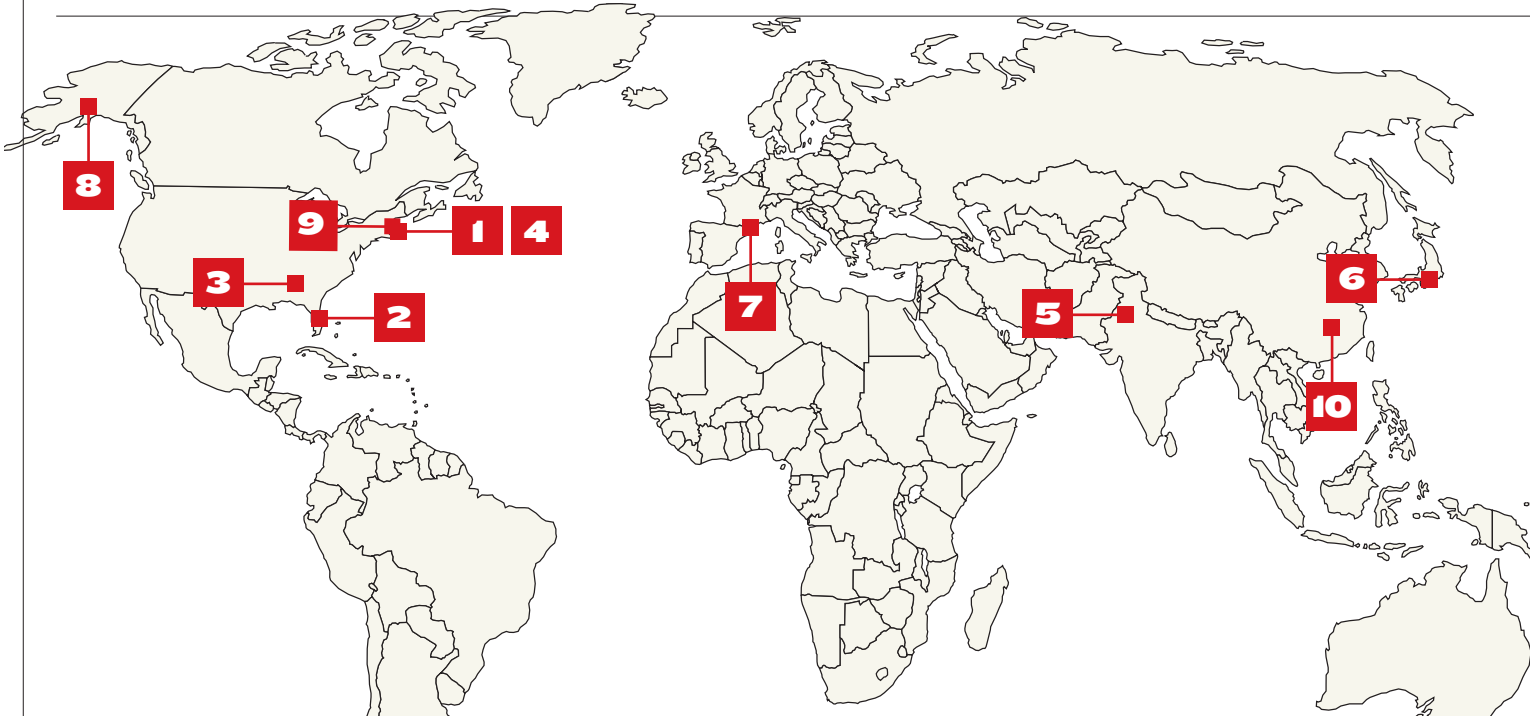

The airlines point out that the carry-on policy came from the Federal Aviation Administration, not the industry, and they have an obligation to keep people from sneaking bulky bags onto planes to avoid fees.

Not only is it unfair to the honest, fee-paying traveler, they say, but it also would overload the overhead bins and force

The U.S. Military Academy relies each year on a platoon of volunteers to help choreograph R-Day, the figurative dunk in ice water for would-be cadets used to the warm bath of civilian life. More than 200 civilians showed up for this year's practice to help cadets iron out kinks ranging from sock distribution to salute instructions. [AP PHOTO]

Fireworks exports suffer

10 LIUYANG, China Chen Tiezhong will likely spend the 4th of July worrying about the future of his sprawling fireworks factory. China, where fireworks were invented, is running short of ports from which to ship the dangerous cargoes abroad.

China's fireworks industry provides 98 percent of America's overall needs and 80 percent of the pyrotechnics needed for professional displays. But the U.S. fireworks business stands to lose $25 million to $30 million this year because of lost orders, says Julie Heckman, executive director for the American Pyrotechnics Association.

A Missouri firm says it backed out of some shows because of the shortage. Meanwhile, some Chinese factories are being pushed close to bankruptcy.

"Our factory will be forced to close, whether we want it or not," said Chen Tiezhong at his 500-employee plant in Liuyang.

Adding to the industry's woes, China has ordered major ports such as Shanghai and Hong Kong to suspend shipments of explosives as part of tightened security ahead of August's Beijing Olympics.

WHITE SOX 5, CUBS 1

After last weekend's losses at Wrigley, Sox give Cubs a taste of their own medicine

From news services

Sweep revenge for the White Sox against the Cubs. Carlos Quentin, Brian Anderson and Jim Thome homered to back Mark Buehrle's seven strong innings Sunday night as the White Sox completed their first sweep of the Cubs at U.S. Cellular Field by beating the North Side rivals 5-1.

The White Sox won three straight at their home park, one week after the Cubs took three in a row at Wrigley Field. It was the Sox's second sweep of the Cubs—the first came at Wrigley in 1999, two years after interleague play began.

Chants of "Sweep, Sweep" echoed throughout the ballpark after Thome launched his 522nd home run with two outs in the eighth to give the Sox a 5-1 lead and move past Willie McCovey and Ted Williams for sole possession of 16th place on the career home run list.

The Cubs' frustration became complete in the ninth when Mark DeRosa was doubled off second base after Jim Edmonds lined out to first with the Cubs attempting to rally against Sox closer Bobby Jenks.

Buehrle (6-6) won his fourth straight decision, allowing six hits and an unearned run in seven innings in a matchup of lefties with the Cubs' Sean Marshall (0-2). Marshall gave up three runs and five hits in seven innings, two of them homers.

This season the two rivals met as first-place teams for the first time in interleague play and are still atop their respective divisions. The Cubs' (49-33) lead in the NL Central was sliced to 2 1/2 games with the loss and the White Sox (46-35) are 1 1/2 ahead in the AL Central.

WHAT'S NEXT ...

... for the White Sox

The Sox open the second half of the season with a bigger task ahead of them, starting Monday night with a three-game series against Cleveland. The Indians have lost six of nine to the Sox. "It's going to make it or break it for us," Cleveland manager Eric Wedge told reporters of the upcoming trip, which could dictate whether they decide to trade ace C.C. Sabathia, who will pitch Wednesday.

... for the Cubs

Manager Lou Piniella is already thinking about the rotation. "We have to make a decision on who leaves the rotation [upon Carlos Zambrano's return from the DL]," Piniella said before Sunday's game. "My initial thought was to put a nice young arm like [Sean] Gallagher in the bullpen. ... But let's see how Sean Marshall pitches." How would Gallagher feel if the Cubs got another starter? "I don't worry about that," he said. "I just worry about my next start." [TRIBUNE, AP CONTRIBUTED.]

A good night's sweep

CROSSTOWN HITS

Piniella gets tossed—then goes off on ump

Cubs manager Lou Piniella was ejected Sunday night for the first time since his famous dirt-kicking episode during a Cubs-Atlanta game at Wrigley Field last season.

It happened in the second inning, when Piniella came onto the field to protest first-base umpire Chad Fairfield's ruling on an appeal of a called ball on a check swing by Joe Crede.

After plate umpire Rob Drake saw Piniella on the field, he immediately ejected him, leading to more histrionics from Piniella. "You can't argue balls and strikes," said umpiring supervisor Richie Garcia, who has been monitoring the game at U.S. Cellular Field this weekend. "He knows that."

>> Aramis Ramirez, who homered four times against the White Sox last weekend, went 0-for-13 in the three games.

>> This year marked the first time in the history of the City Series that both the Sox and the Cubs were in first place. The all-time series is tied 33-33.

>> Bulls F Tyrus Thomas attended Sunday night's game at the Cell.

>> Actor/comedian Bernie Mac, a Chicago native, threw out a ceremonial first pitch Sunday.

>> The crowd of 39,573 was the third straight sellout and sixth of the season for the White Sox. There were several fights in the stands. Brian Nolan of Woodridge was charged with theft related to Saturday's fight in the upper deck at U.S. Cellular Field, police said. Nolan allegedly picked up some money that fell out of a woman's purse and refused to give it back. That led to several fans punching Nolan.

>> Paul Konerko was too sore to take a flight to join the Charlotte Knights, so the White Sox first baseman's minor-league rehabilitation assignment was delayed at least one day.

>> Derrek Lee went 5-for-5 against the Sox on Saturday to match his career high, recording three singles and two doubles. But it apparently wasn't enough to impress his young daughter, Jada. "She doesn't care," Lee said. "She just says, 'Daddy, I told you to hit a home run today. You didn't hit a home run.'" [TRIBUNE, AP]

Sweet Lou 2?

Guillen does his best (or worst) Piniella imitation

Ozzie Guillen regaled the media before Sunday night's game with his Lou Piniella impersonation. Mostly it contained Guillen backing up while talking, swearing once in a while and complaining about the Chicago media.

Before Piniella did his pregame news conference in the dugout, Guillen walked up and wished him luck the rest of the year, before launching into his Lou impression again.

"Look at all these people here," Guillen said in a fake Piniella voice. "Jeez."

Piniella laughed it off. What did he think of Guillen's impersonation? "If you hang around with Ozzie long enough, you don't think," he replied.

[TRIBUNE]

HE SAID IT

"I wish we didn't play any interleague games. I think it takes away from the World Series, but the fans want it, so I gave up that fight a long time ago."

JERRY REINSORF

[the White Sox chairman said Sunday that he would prefer suspending the Cubs-White Sox City Series until the World Series]

DOT COMMENTS

During Sunday night's City Series finale, here's what visitors to chicagosports.com's message boards had to say:

What's with the Cubs? Our pitchers are serving up homers to the likes of Brian Anderson and Alexei Ramirez, and our guys are choking in clutch situations. ... This series is looking like the beginning of the end of the Cubs' season."

KPO'M

"Cubs will be fine. They are having a tough time because of injuries and some [Carlos] Marmol issues. Their division is weak and the Cardinals have yet to play at Wrigley. They will get that butt handed to them. Plus, Cubs play SF this week. Enjoy."

SHARPSHOOTER

"I must admit, I am impressed with the Sox defense. Cubs are getting in some good hacks though, hopefully they can keep it up."

CUBS KEN

"WOW, I mean Just WOW. The ump is so bad it's not even funny. 2 pitches way inside for strikes? Does this guy know Tim Donaghy?"

HORRIBLE

CANINE LINES

By Whizzer
REDEYESPORTS@TRIBUNE.COM

1 South rises again

Congrats to the White Sox for taking the weekend series vs. the Cubs. Congrats to the Cubs for putting all of Cubdom in panic mode.

2 Mouth guard

Apparently all it takes to keep Ozzie quiet is winning a series against the Cubs.

3 Double ouch

Paul Konerko was too sore to take a flight to his rehab assignment. That sentence would make a lot more sense if it started with "Kerry Wood."

4 Only in Chicago

Where else but here would you see fans wearing jackets in the stands in the middle of summer? Thanks a lot, Mother Nature. Or is it Mother Hater?

5 Twin powers

Don't look now, Sox fans. But the Minnesota Twins are right behind you in the standings. Yes, their death was greatly exaggerated.

6 House rules

The Cubs just can't seem to win on the road. Perhaps they should take some of those rats Ozzie saw at Wrigley with them on their road trips.

7 Time of the sign

It was 7:29 p.m. Sunday when ESPN cameras caught Ozzie smiling in the dugout. That's like catching Bigfoot or the Loch Ness Monster on camera.

8 Sapp dance

Ex-NFL sack master Warren Sapp says he'll probably accept an offer to do "Dancing With the Stars." Can't wait to see him in sequins.

9 Must be the shoes

New Memphis Grizzly O.J. Mayo signed a deal with Nike before Thursday's NBA Draft. Just what he needs. More shoes.

FIVE ATHLETES ...

... with Chicago ties we'd like to see on "Dancing With the Stars."

>> William "the Refrigerator" Perry. 'Nuff said.

>> Dennis Rodman. Just to see his outfit.

>> Cedric Benson. Can he really use his feet?

>> Rex Grossman. He could actually do well here.

>> Lou Piniella. I'd like to see his post-show rant when he's booted.

TOPIC 1: THE CUBS WON THE FIRST CITY SERIES; THE SOX WON THE SECOND. WHO EARNED BRAGGING RIGHTS?

The Cubs didn't resort to bad-mouthing the Cell, so they win the "classy" award.	Carlos Quentin and Derrek Lee, both legit MVP contenders and potential hair models.	Derrick Rose—take that, Michael Beasley! HAHA HAHAHA!	I think it was the philosopher Ron Santo who said, "He who laughs last, laughs last."	Ozzie Guillen, because clearly he's above anything like rubbing it in Cubs fans' faces.
--	---	---	---	---

TOPIC 2: HOW HAS THIS YEAR'S 'L' SERIES COMPARED TO NEW YORK'S SUBWAY SERIES?

Chicago has better teams playing better baseball—and the pizza's better too!	Here, half the clubhouse was fired up. There, half the clubhouse was just plain fired.	100 percent less Jared.	The NYC teams are so mediocre they went a combined 2-10 against each other.	At least Wrigley has the decency to hide its rats, not have them work concessions.
--	--	-------------------------	---	--

TOPIC 3: WHY DID AMERICAN MEN TANK AT WIMBLEDON?

In an effort to go green, they were using spaghetti as racket string. Didn't work.	What do you mean? Aren't the Williams sisters still in it? Ooooooh. Yikes.	Bunch of Wimbledummies.	They adopted the Ricky Williams style of playing and, not surprisingly, didn't do well on grass.	You just wait until those other countries invent trans fat. Sweet, delicious trans fat.

TOPIC 4: HOW HAS EURO2008 INSPIRED YOU?

I have a newfound drive and motivation to ignore soccer.	I can tell Spanish soccer players from Spanish soap stars. (Soccer players do a lot more acting.)	World domination will be easier than I thought!	I am now committed to bringing Euro2016 to Chicago.	I just need to kick one lousy goal and I too can become a national hero.
--	---	---	---	--

TOPIC 5: HOW WAS DERRICK ROSE'S FIRST WEEKEND AS A BULL DIFFERENT FROM MOST WEEKENDS IN CHICAGO?

He's a Bull who wasn't booed. Perhaps the only one.	He threw out the first pitch at the Cell, an honor usually reserved for whomever they can find.	His taste of Chicago was that much sweeter. HA! I slay me.	There was a tad less bourbon and hookers to go around for the rest of us.	Now his concept of public transportation is having Mayor Daley carry him around on his back.

Swimming to Beijing

OLYMPIC HITS

>> Equestrian: Steffen Peters took the national Grand Prix dressage championship and earned one of four Olympic berths Sunday by winning the freestyle event at the Olympic dressage trials at Oaks Blenheim Farms.

>> Track: Tyson Gay was a blur in blue, sprinting 100 meters faster than anyone ever has. His time of 9.68 seconds at the U.S. Olympic trials Sunday doesn't count as a world record, because it was run with the help of a too-strong tailwind. Gay qualified for his first Summer Games team and served notice he's certainly someone to watch in Beijing.

>> Locals qualify for butterfly finals: Christine Magnuson and Mary DeScenza made Monday's final of the women's 100-meter butterfly, qualifying first and fifth, respectively. Magnuson, a Tinley Park native who just finished her collegiate career at Tennessee, had the fastest semifinal time at 57.50 seconds. DeScenza, formerly of Naperville, went 58.86.

Holding off one of his best friends, Michael Phelps started his second attempt to break Mark Spitz's Olympic record with another epic swim.

Less than an hour later, the teenager he compares to a little sister joined Phelps in the record book.

Phelps set a world record in his first event of the U.S. Olympic swimming trials, touching just ahead of Ryan Lochte to win the 400-meter individual medley in 4 minutes, 5.25 seconds in Omaha on Sunday night.

Katie Hoff matched her former North Baltimore teammate in the 400 IM, taking down the women's mark in 4:31.12.

Wearing the high-tech Speedo LZR Racer, Phelps beat his own mark of 4:06.22, set at last year's world championships in Australia when he turned in one of the greatest performances in swimming history with seven gold medals.

"That was probably one of the most painful races of my life," the winner said. "Everything was left in the pool. I definitely would not have been able to do it without Lochte beside me. He's a great friend and a great competitor. I love racing him."

Katie Hoff set a world record time of 4:31.12 in the women's 400-meter individual medley finals. [AP PHOTO]

The 19-year-old Hoff—playfully described by Phelps as the little sister he never had—showed no signs of the nervousness that ruined her first trip to the Olympics four years ago. The youngest member of the U.S. team, she was overcome by the moment and threw up on deck after failing to advance from her first event.

All grown up, Hoff dipped under record pace on the breaststroke leg and held on with her freestyle to beat Stephanie Rice's mark of 4:31.46, set in March at the Australian Olympic trials.

Spain 1, Germany 0

A big-game flop no more, Spain won the European Championship 1-0 over Germany on Sunday for its first major title in 44 years. Looking to hook up? Here's where to jump-start a saucy summer fling

By Emily Hiser Lobdell

In an ideal world, every romantic fling would begin with a candlelit dinner, roses and a phone call the next day. Get real. Most flings are all about booze, a little grinding on the dance floor, making out in public and then waking up in an unfamiliar bed with your contact lenses stuck to your eyeballs. Take heart—you're not alone. These bars can provide the perfect scene for the start of a juicy summer fling.

Liar's Club

1665 W. FULLERTON AVE. 773-665-1110
Who needs honesty in a relationship when you can have more fun at The Liar's Club? Head to the small dance floor in the back of this dark, slightly divey bar. If your bumping and grinding gets a little too hot to handle, go slightly horizontal in one of the booths along the perimeter. Seal the deal: Take your date out on a Monday night and ply him or her with a couple of $1 PBR drafts.

Frank's

2503 N. CLARK ST. 773-549-2700
One of the few Lincoln Park bars with a 4 a.m. liquor license, Frank's is an obvious choice if your date is going well into the wee hours. After 2 a.m. on weekends, the small space bursts at the seams with loud, potentially over-served twentysomethings. With all the commotion, who's going to notice you locking lips in the corner?

Seal the deal: Try the signature Old Blue Eyes Martini, made with SKYY melon vodka and Blue Curacao, garnished with a lemon ($9).

Moe's Cantina

3518 N. CLARK ST. 773-248-0002
While the U-shaped booths are a step up from the main floor, these prime seats offer a cozy little nook for stealing a kiss or two, unbeknownst to the tequila-drinking partiers below. Moe's proximity to Wrigley makes it a prime place for a Cubs game post-party for two. Seal the deal: Spring for a pitcher of white sangria ($20), so refreshing you won't know what hit ya.

The Underground

56 W. ILLINOIS ST. 312-644-7600
The '80s were known for acid-washed jeans and new wave music—and public makeout sessions that didn't raise eyebrows. Relive it all at Rewind Thursdays. The Underground's low-slung bench seats are perfect for going at it while Flock of Seagulls blares overhead. Seal the deal: Try the Captain Cucumon, with Ketel One Citroen, cucumber, sugar and lemon wedges ($12). The menu says it will "tickle the tongue"—a nice warm-up for the tongue tangling to come.

Uncle Fatty's Rum Resort

2833 N. SHEFFIELD AVE. 773-477-3661
There's so much make-out potential here, it's amazing anyone comes up for air. Curl up under a beach umbrella, sidle into a secluded cabana or recline on a couch in the mosquito net-draped "oasis." Who needs Temptation Island when you've got the Rum Resort? Seal the deal: Go for the motion of the Ocean Potion, a sloshy mix of coconut rum and fruit juices in a fishbowl, served with Swedish fish and several straws for sharing ($12 for 22 ounces).

The Hangge-Uppe

14 W. ELM ST. 312-337-0561
There's a definite upside to the crowd of sauced-up partiers grooving to '60s, '70s and '80s tunes and packs of bachelorettes screaming "Woo!" at this Near North bar: Not a soul will care if you and Mr. or Ms. Right Now get it on right there on the dance floor. Seal the deal: Toss back a few test-tube shots ($2 each), and let the chemical reactions begin.

The Zebra Lounge

1220 N. STATE PKWY. 312-642-5140
If walls could talk, they'd have plenty of salacious stories about the canoodling that's gone on in this kitschy piano bar, open since the '30s. Try to score one of the few coveted black leather booths. Seal the deal: This cocktail lounge is all about the classics, so go old-school with a Manhattan made with premium Maker's Mark ($9.50).

Hydrate

3458 N. HALSTED ST. 773-975-9244
If you and your date are still getting along famously late into the night, you might want to do the mating dance at this Boystown club. There

DWELE AND KANYE

When R&B singer Dwele went in the studio to do his part on Kanye West's "Flash-ing Lights," Dwele cut his lines several different ways, adding various harmonies and vocal runs to his "what do I know-ow" hook.

"I overdid it, vocally, so he could pick and choose whatever he wanted," said Dwe', who says West was "running around, flying to the moon, doing what he does" while he was busy recording his vocals. "He listened to it, he was like, 'Yeah, yeah, yeah, that's hot—I just want one vocal though.'"

So he laid it down straight-forward, no flash. West liked what he heard, and it was a wrap. "I knocked it out, and we talked about fashion the rest of the day," Dwele says. [DETROIT NEWS]

R&B SINGER DWELE WEAVES HIP-HOP INTO HIS NEW CD

The Detroit News

Dwele is in a hip-hop kind of mood.

The Detroit R&B singer just released his third album, "Sketches of a Man," on Tuesday. It's more hip-hop driven than his previous efforts.

"It's just where I am right now," Dwele says. "I think my style is made up of soul, hip-hop and jazz, and I like to ride the fence on all of that. Right now, I'm hip-hop; that's what I'm feeling."

It's no wonder: Dwele is coming off a pair of high-profile cameos that pushed him further into hip-hop's mainstream. He appeared on "The People," a track from Chi-cago rapper Common's 2007 album "Find-ing Forever," and later joined Kanye West on the hypnotic "Flashing Lights" from West's blockbuster 2007 CD "Graduation."

Now it's time for Dwele to do some graduating of his own.

"I'm Cheatin'," the first single from "Sketches," brought about a minor con-troversy when it debuted on MySpace earlier this year; fans thought Dwele was advocating cheating, though the song is an exploration of the split personality of the female character he sings about. She's con-servative in public and dresses up for work, but lets her hair down and shows her wild side when she's with him. In the song's final chorus, Dwele sings, "I'm cheatin' on my girl with my girl."

Unaware of the lyrical nuance, angry fans wrote nasty letters asking him to explain himself; he wrote many back and did just that. He's happy the song got peo-ple talking.

"It's one of those songs you have to lis-ten to the lyrics to really get the meaning."

"Flashing Lights" on the other hand? Dwele says he's still not sure what that one's about.

"I'm assuming it's about stuntin'," or showing off, he says. "It's more about the feeling of the song. And with that song, [West] captured a feeling, a vibe, and that's what it's about sometimes."

"Flashing Lights" went on to become one of the album's most talked-about songs and made its way on to several crit-ics' year-end top 10 lists. Dwele says "Flashing Lights" was "a good look" for him personally and professionally, and he now performs the song in concert.

Dwele is about to go on tour push-ing "Sketches." It coincides with what he calls a "new beginning" in his life. Having recently turned 30, he's enjoying a new perspective of the world.

"30 is the new 20—I think there's some truth in that," he says, borrowing a quote from Jay-Z. "I think at 30, you're more con-scious of what you're doing in life, conscious of that little bit of youth you still have left. ... In a way, 30 is a new beginning."

I think my style is made up of soul, hip-hop and jazz, and I like to ride the fence on all of that. Right now, I'm hip-hop; that's what I'm feeling."

Assistance Program.

- For dates of service on or after August 1, 2008, the socio-developmental component of the reimbursement rate for nursing facilities that are classified as institutions for mental diseases shall equal 6.6% of the facility's nursing component rate as of January 1, 2006, multiplied by 3.53. This will result in an average increase of $3.12 in the per diem rate. Implementation of this change will increase spending by approximately $5.2 million on an annual basis.
- Effective for dates of service on or after July 1, 2008, the Department of Human Services, Division of Developmental Disabilities, is terminating the reimbursement methodology for host family community integrated living arrangement (CILA) that has been in place since June 1, 2006, as a distinct and separate approach to funding individuals in certain one- and two-person settings approved as host family. The division will now fund these settings using the existing CILA rate methodology for 24-hour supports that has remained in place for other one- and two-person non-host family settings. The per diem residential rate for individuals funded under the host family CILA that is terminating will increase on average by $27.05 to $134.79. The estimated annual cost of this change is approximately $450,000.
- Pursuant to any implementation of federal rules affecting targeted case management (CMS 2237-IFC), the department will modify the payment methodology as necessary to meet such federal requirements. This may involve limiting case management services received by a client to a single case manager and establishing a new rate methodology based on a 15 minute billing unit. The implementation date of such changes has not yet been established by the federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS). Any change in payment methodology that may be ultimately imposed by the CMS is not anticipated to result in a net change in provider payments.
- Effective for dates of service on or after July 1, 2008, vendors of homemaker services will have their rates increased by $1.70 per hour in order to increase the wages of their employees who provide homemaker services by at least $1.00 per hour. Payments to such vendors shall also be increased by $1.33 per hour to provide for health insurance for employee families who provide homemaker services. The estimated annual cost of this increase is about $79 million.
- Reimbursement rates for personal care services will be increased for dates of service on or after each July first, as follows:
 - For 2008, hourly rates will increase by $0.50 to $9.85.
 - For 2009, hourly rates will increase by $0.60 to $10.45.
 - For 2010, hourly rates will increase by $0.75 to $11.20.
 - For 2011, hourly rates will increase by $0.35 to $11.55.

The annual cost for this increase will be $19 million in State fiscal year 2009.

- For dates of service on or after July 2, 2008, the reimbursement rate for adult day care services will increase by $2.00 to $9.02 per hour. The annual cost for this increase will be $5.2 million in State fiscal year 2009.

^ THE CHEST BUMP

Origins: Unknown, but most likely originated in professional sports. It gained in popularity in the 1990s.

What it means: Patti Wood, an Atlanta body language expert and author of "Success Signals," says the symbolism of the chest bump is one of vulnerability and elation. The chest bumpers throw their arms back. Their hands are open, revealing they have no weapons. And they expose their chests and hearts, indicating they are vulnerable, joyful and non-threatening. For men—and most chest bumpers are male—the move says, "I want to be close, but I'm not feminine."

Step by step: Approach your chest-bumping partner, pull your shoulders back and extend your arms, palms open, to the side.

Jump forward and bump the chest of your partner.

Who's doing it: President Bush, most professional athletes (who prefer the modified hip bump), tipsy guys in bars.

Inherent dangers: This move has a huge potential for making you look stupid. Wood cites the Bush Bump as an example of a bump gone slightly wrong. The president, who instigated the bump during a graduation ceremony at the U.S. Air Force Academy, does not appear at ease with the move. His hands are clenched, his face in near grimace, Wood says, and his bump lacks the usual joy and exuberance. To Wood, the move indicates the president is uncomfortable opening himself up to others.

TALK WITH THE HANDS

Is the handshake dead? Often seen only at formal occasions or when thanking bank managers for loans, the old grip-and-grin succumbed recently when George Bush was photographed doing a chest bump (above, left), and Democratic presidential nominee Barack Obama exchanged a dap with his wife, Michelle (above, right).

Here's a look at the handshake's competition.

« THE DAP

Origins: The “dap,” also known as the fist bump, seems to have been born in the muddy battlefields of the Vietnam War. The original version includes a lot of other movements, but time has distilled the dap to a vertical or horizontal fist bump.

What it means: Wood says the dap conveys a sense of determination and power. After reviewing images of Democratic presidential candidate Barack Obama exchanging a dap with his wife after learning he had claimed the nomination, Wood thought their dap conveyed a sense of being ready to conquer, and that they were unified in their quest.

Step by step: Raise your hand as if making a traditional handshake, but curl your fingers into a fist. Keeping the arm parallel to the floor, little finger down, thumb on top, extend your fist from about chest level and gently tap the other person’s fist. For a horizontal dap, simply rotate your fist 90 degrees. Repeat.

Who’s doing it: Barack and Michelle Obama, Howie Mandel, half of Congress.

Inherent dangers: The participants need to be clear on whether they are doing a dap or a high-five, otherwise a certain awkwardness arises. You also run the risk of injury from jewelry and overenthusiastic dapping.

Rating: Five of five. Its popularity likely will decline now that it’s becoming mainstream.

« THE PEACE SIGN

Origins: In much of Europe the “V” sign is an obscene gesture along the lines of flipping someone the bird in this country. It may have had its origins in the 1300s, started by archers and symbolizing the drawing of a bow. Winston Churchill first used it to signal “V” for victory, and in the 1960s, the hippies adopted it as a sign for love. It later become associated with a gesture of peace.

What it means: Beyond the message of love or peace, Wood says flashing the peace sign tells others of your own personal beliefs and asks in return, “Are you part of my tribe? Are you one of my people?”

Step by step: Hold your hand up, palm facing outward. Curl the thumb, ring and little finger inward, leaving the index and middle finger extended to form a “V” shape.

Who’s doing it: Mostly dead guys including Winston Churchill and Richard Nixon; millions of hippies. Now that there is a war and protesters again, quite a few people are flashing the “V” although its popularity today pales in comparison to its use in the 1960s.

Inherent dangers: Muscle spasms and the danger of running into someone who isn’t so peaceful.

Rating: One of five.

THE HALF-HUG/ >> BACK PAT

Origins: In the 1980s, when men started to discover their softer side, they developed the half-hug and back pat.

What it means: There’s a lot going on with this simple-yet-awkward move. Those participating in the half-hug keep their hands open, indicating they are no threat. The body contact, Wood says, implies a certain level of affection and intimacy, but in a nonsexual way. The patting is a male way of showing affection through hitting. It says, “I love you, dude, but not in that way.” Women also adopt the back patting when they become uncomfortable in an embrace, Wood says.

Step by step: Approach the huggee and bring one arm around the back of your partner, touching shoulders and part of the chest, but avoiding full frontal contact. Pat your partner’s back with vigor. Manly swearing optional.

Who’s doing it: Every male in the country, if no one’s paying much attention to them.

Inherent dangers: The inexperienced often panic. Are they holding the embrace for too long? Is someone going to question their masculinity?

Rating: Three of five.

[CHASE AGNELLO- DEAN/ REDEYE PHOTOS]

^ THE HIGH-FIVE

Origins: The high-five developed as an extension of the handshake in the 1970s.

What it means: While the handshake can be sterile and perfunctory, the high-five symbolizes joy, elation and power. But because the palm is open, Wood says, the high-five conveys the feeling that while there is power, there is no threat.

Step by step: Raise your hand above your head and, showing your open palm, slap the hand of your partner. The louder the slap, the better.

Who’s doing it: Who isn’t?

Inherent dangers: Novices may need to curb their enthusiasm until they develop a good high-five callous. Red palms are the beginner’s bane.

Rating: Four of five—especially at times when celebrating a victory. It’s an oldie but a goodie.

Old-school IMDb thrives in online era

Associated Press

There are things that make modern life truly special: TiVo, Charles Barkley, SpongeBob SquarePants, etc.

High on that list also has to be imdb.com, the Internet Movie Database.

IMDb dates back to the early days of the Internet. It was begun as a hobby by a handful of movie geeks as a newsgroup on a Usenet bulletin board.

Founded by a British computer programmer named Col Needham, a very early incarnation launched in October 1990. In 1998, it was acquired as a subsidiary by amazon.com.

By well over a decade, the site predates the "Web 2.0" era of YouTube and Facebook—it is emphatically old-school.

Thankfully, IMDb hasn't tried to update itself with a social-networking component, which just about every site has done in the last few years. Instead, it has stayed true to its simple mission of supplying just about anything you'd want to know about just about every movie. Ever.

The site boasts more than 1 million titles and at least 2.6 million names. Most every movie and TV show is listed with the complete cast and crew. It's a reservoir of information including box-office numbers, reviews, trivia, trailers, quotes, soundtrack listings, mistakes and much more.

The user ratings for films can often be a reasonable gauge for its popularity (the site also keeps track of the "Bottom 100" and "Top 250" titles by ranking). For an aspiring actor, having your name on IMDb is an achievement in itself.

GET US ON YOUR PHONE

Keep up to date with entertainment news all day long. Go to redeye.chicago.com on your mobile phone.

IMDb has stayed true to its roots, even resisting the addition of social-networking components, which most Web sites have done in the past few years.

There have been two major additions to the site in the last decade. In 2002, the for-pay IMDbPro sought to make it a destination for entertainment professions looking for contacts for celebrities and companies.

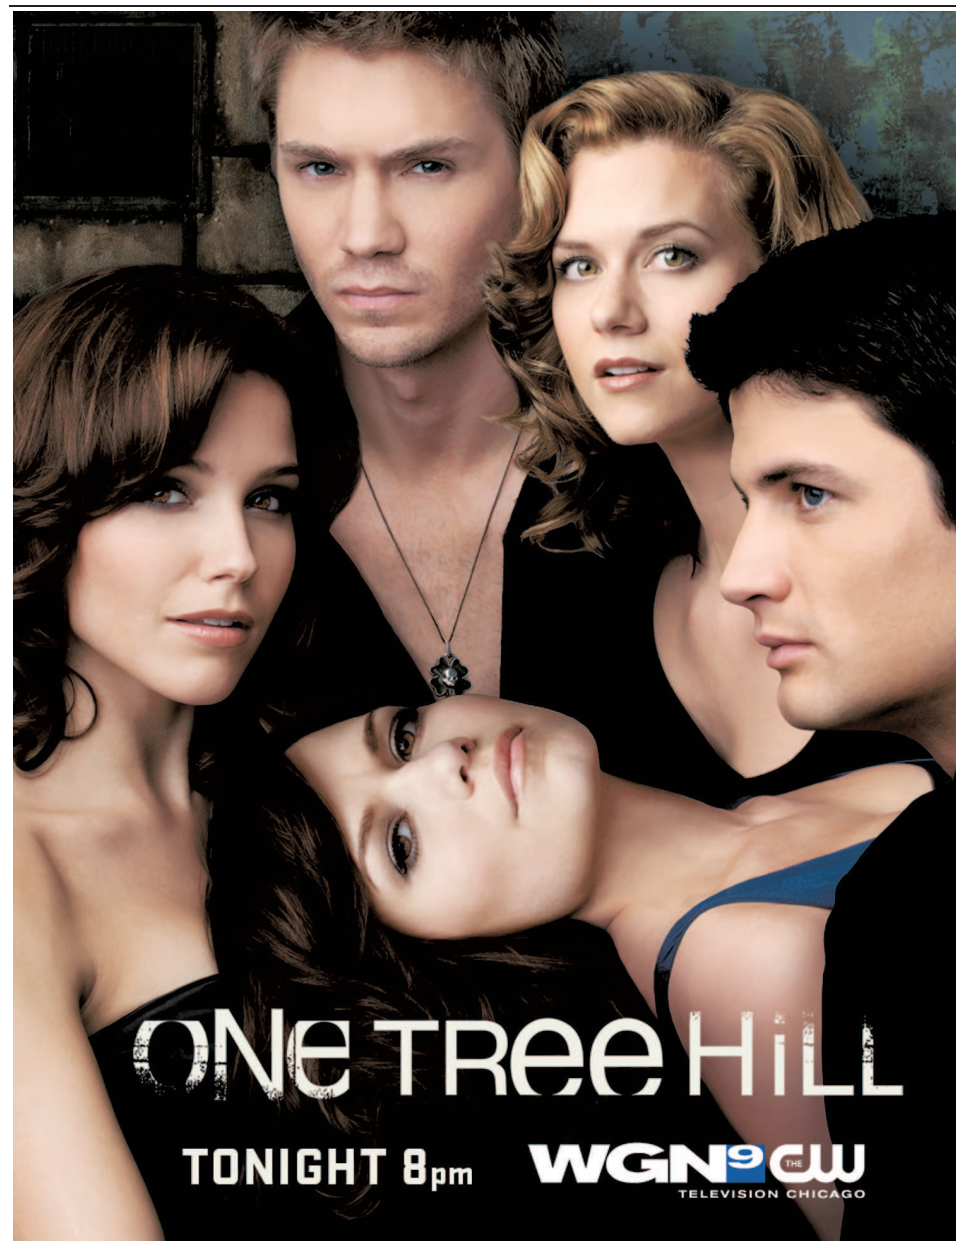

In 2006, the site added full episode details for TV series so that you can know exactly who is in specific episodes.

There's even a feature until recently most probably weren't aware of. At the bottom of everyone's page, you can cross reference two people.

For example, on Robert Redford's page, you can plug in the late Sydney Pollack to find their many collaborations. (This is an obvious boon to playing the six degrees of Kevin Bacon.)

IMDb remains a uniquely pleasurable destination in an Internet landscape increasingly crowded with outsized promises of "connectivity." IMDb's raw utility is standing the test of time.

POP GAMES

BY LOU KESTEN, AP

PSP upping its arsenal

The PlayStation Portable has been around for three years, but the machine you might buy today is far different from the one you'd get in 2005. Sony is continually tinkering with the thing in ways big (introducing a lighter, slimmer model in 2007) and small (any number of regularly issued firmware updates).

It's still, first and foremost, a game machine. Its game library continues to grow, and while it doesn't have as diverse a selection as the Nintendo DS, its AAA titles look spectacular.

Secret Agent Clank

SONY/
PSP/$39.99

Here is the second PSP spinoff of Sony's great Ratchet & Clank franchise, which the High Impact Games studio has successfully shrunk to fit a 4.3-inch screen. Clank, the robot half of the duo, is the star this time, and his droll wit is as charming as ever in the game.

Ratchet has been falsely imprisoned, so Clank's on a solo mission to clear his pal's name. There's a robust assortment of clever weapons and gadgets, such as exploding cufflinks and bow-tie boomerangs. Some sequences reward stealth, but it's usually more fun to fight than sneak. There also are sections where Clank dances, pilots a speedboat or tries to get the brain-dead Gadge-Bots to do his bidding. Secret Agent Clank doesn't have the depth of its parent series, but its fast-paced levels are well suited for portable play.

Hot Shots Golf: Open Tee 2

SONY/
PSP/$29.99

With the Hot Shots series, developer Clap Hanz has turned the usually sluggish game of golf into one of the zippiest video-game sports. The ultra-simple swing system involves pressing the X button three times: once to start, once for power, once for accuracy. You can learn more precise techniques as the game progresses. You also can improve your power, accuracy and spin by completing tasks in the game's challenge mode. Success also lets you unlock 12 courses and 12 characters, and there are dozens of items to collect. You can finish nine holes in about 10 minutes, but you'll always be tempted to start just one more round as you search for an elusive accessory. Open Tee 2 is the best portable golf game on the market.

R-Type Command

TLUS/
PSP/$39.99

R-Type is one of the all-time great outer-space shoot-'em-ups, but this spinoff is a much more laid-back tactical game. You start each level by placing an assortment of spaceships on a hex-filled grid; the objective, generally, is to reach a particular spot on the grid or to destroy your opponent's flagship. Strategy lovers will eat this up, but others may find it baffling. The battles are well-balanced, though, challenging yet fair, and patient players will come to appreciate the versatility of the spacecraft. But patience is the key. R-Type Command moves very slowly, and battles take half-an-hour or more. If you're nostalgic for the frenzy of classic R-Type, you'd be better off rejecting this Command.

ROMANCE PLANET

By Jennifer Shepherd, the Lipstick Mystic
FOR JUNE 30-JULY 6; READ MORE @ LIPSTICKMYSTIC.COM

Cancer

JUNE 22-JULY 22

It's been tough going lately, but some of the shock has worn off. Now Saturn is making you super-calm. So what if your honey ran off and left you to pay the monthly bills on your own? So what if your girl married somebody else? You can handle it.

Leo

JULY 23-AUG. 22

You're in one of your freaky, kinky moods. You don't mind if things get a little dangerous. A moon opposition has you throwing caution to the wind. Maybe you will call up that sexy co-worker or married neighbor, after all.

Virgo

AUG. 23-SEPT. 22

Mars is entering your sign, and this will revive that fading libido. Warn your honey that you'll be expecting sexual marathons. Get stocked up on fine wine, caviar, oysters and anything else that will increase that sensual edge.

Libra

SEPT. 23-OCT. 23

Your partner might be wondering why you seem unable to focus on your relationship. It's because you've been tempted by several tasty someones lately, and you don't know what to do about it. A frisky moon could make things more complicated.

Scorpio

OCT. 24-NOV. 21

Lusty Venus is inspiring you to go on the prowl. You won't rest until you have had your way with that new hottie or sexy girl you recently met. You don't much care about compatibility over the long term. Right now, it's all about hooking up.

Sagittarius

NOV. 22-DEC. 21

Watch your words this week. A cranky moon could compel you to toss off insults, rude comments and other destructive language. Don't destroy your honey's confidence by telling her that yes, those jeans do make her look fat.

Capricorn

DEC. 22-JAN. 19

A Venus opposition is heating things up. It's all about emotional intensity right now. There's a lot of chaos in your romantic life, but you have to admit it. You like the drama. If nothing else, fighting with your partner makes the makeup sex so much better.

Aquarius

JAN. 20-FEB. 18

This week, the doctor is in. You're in major advice-giving mode. You're the true Love Guru, baby. Your best friend is having a meltdown about a guy, and your favorite guy pal needs you to help him analyze his current relationship situation. Get to it.

Pisces

FEB. 19-MARCH 20

As Mars moves opposite your sign for a few weeks, it's best to put off making any major life decisions. Don't get engaged. Don't start planning a wedding. Don't move in with a cutie you just met at a bar. Chill out and wait for further developments.

Aries

MARCH 21-APRIL 19

A fiery moon could inspire you to celebrate your own personal Independence Day. You've had it up to here with your partner's demands. Or you're tired of waiting around growing gray hair while you wait for your honey to make a commitment.

Taurus

APRIL 20-MAY 20

You'll have a warm and cozy feeling, thanks to friendly Mars. Maybe you're falling in love with your honey. Or perhaps you're already in love, and you're considering having a baby together. Whatever is going on, enjoy the good vibes.

Gemini

MAY 21-JUNE 21

There's a bouncy new moon in your sign, and this means that seduction will be easier than ever. You could have a sudden, sweaty encounter with someone you've just met. Or you might turn up the heat with a longtime lover. Go for it.

WHOVILLE

Paris and Benji are latest stars to decide to work together. Will it work out?

RedEye

Uh-oh.

Paris Hilton hinted last week that she and boyfriend Benji Madden have broken the cardinal rule of Hollywood romances: They're working together.

Hilton told E! News last week that Madden, the Good Charlotte rocker, is working with her in the recording studio she had built in her Beverly Hills mansion. Hilton said she and her lovah (whose brother, Joel, has a daughter with Hilton's bestie Nicole Richie) have written a few songs, including a theme for her new MTV reality show, online.com reported.

"Benji and I have been working hard on it," she said. "He's helping me write the lyrics for the song and then I'll sing it, too."

Hilton and Madden wouldn't be the first show business couple to work together and succeed, but the track record is mixed. Many a Hollywood pair has fallen apart after teaming up too. Here are just a few examples of both.

HILTON AND MADDEN

Business and pleasure—or pain

HEIDI MONTAG and SPENCER PRATT

The reality TV villains used their exposure from MTV's "The Hills" to try to launch Montag's singing career. Web message boards filled up with hate directed at Montag's songs and a music video that Pratt shot himself.

STATUS: The couple briefly hit the skids (as documented on MTV and several Us Weekly covers—makes you wonder how real the "drama" was), but seems to have patched things up. Still, they remain unmarried many months after Pratt first popped the question.

JENNIFER LOPEZ and MARC ANTHONY

The star singers have toured together, recorded music together and starred in the 2006 biopic "El Cantante," about salsa singing legend Hector Lavoe.

STATUS: Anthony and Lopez remain married and seemingly happy raising their twins. Of late, Lopez has shown off a spectacular post-babies body in paparazzi photos.

LINDSAY LOHAN and WILMER VALDERRAMA

Lohan and Valderrama made such a cute couple that Fox decided to invite Lohan to guest-star on "That '70s Show," which made a star of Valderrama.

STATUS: Alas, that same year ended in heartache for the couple. News of a split came in November, and their careers and personal lives took a detour. Love hurts!

CARMEN ELECTRA and DAVE NAVARRO

The guitar god and the "Baywatch" babe decided to put their wedding entirely on film in the reality series "'Til Death Do Us Part." Goth wedding cake for everybody!

STATUS: One of several couples to fall victim to the so-called "MTV curse" (see also: Nick Lachey and Jessica Simpson), Electra and Navarro divorced in 2006. Electra recently got engaged again, this time to Rob Patterson, former touring guitarist for Korn.

BEYONCE and JAY-Z

The superstar couple stopped, collaborated and listened on Jay's hit "'03 Bonnie and Clyde" and B's hit "Crazy In Love."

STATUS: The two hit makers since have teamed up again on Jay-Z's "American Gangster" and reportedly got hitched in a secret ceremony. No sign of trouble here.

Everything cool at school?

Will Smith's soon-to-open L.A. private school is not a Scientology facility, as some reports have suggested, the academy's director said.

Smith and his wife, Jada Pinkett Smith, founded the New Village Academy, scheduled to open in September.

The school will use instructional methods developed by Scientology founder L. Ron Hubbard called study technology. And a few teachers belong to the church.

But the couple say they are not Scientologists, and the academy's director insists the facility has no religious affiliation.

"We are a secular school, and just like all non-religious independent schools, faculty and staff do not promote their own religions at school or pass on the beliefs of their particular faith to children," New Village Academy director Jacqueline Olivier told the Los Angeles Times.

Seeing shades of 'Red'

Rose McGowan will team up with her "Planet Terror" director Robert Rodriguez to star as "Red Sonja," Variety reports. If that movie name sounds familiar, it's because it's a remake of the '80s action flick starring Arnold Schwarzenegger and Brigitte Nielsen as the fearsome, sword-swinging title character.

Date night

Old pals Matt Damon and Ben Affleck made it a double date over the weekend, dining with their wives at a posh restaurant in Malibu, Calif., people.com reports. Damon's wife, Luciana Barroso, is pregnant with the couple's child, and Affleck and wife Jennifer Garner were celebrating their third anniversary.

NINE LINES

By Leo Ebersole
LEBERSOLE@TRIBUNE.COM

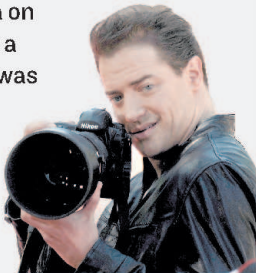

1 Nice save
Verne "Mini-Me" Troyer sued TMZ to stop the release of his sex tape. In a happy coincidence, he also stopped the release of 130 gallons of vomit.

2 The full experience
What a jam-packed weekend in Chicago. Really you have no excuse for staying indoors. I mean, unless you were wearing a rainbow-colored Speedo and eating a turkey leg out of a Sox cap. Then you get a pass. Freak.

3 Dirty Jersey
HBO plans to release a 30-disc box set of "The Sopranos" Nov. 11. Bonus features include the very special documentary "The making of Adriana's press-on nails."

4 Tool of the devil
Brendan Fraser is handed a camera on the red carpet as a joke. But no one was laughing when, moments later, he took off in search of Dina Lohan.

5 Cash machine
"WALL-E" opened as the No. 1 movie in America over the weekend, continuing a proud tradition of money-making, dialogue-challenged robots in Hollywood that dates back to Keanu Reeves.

6 Shot down
"Wanted," starring Angelina Jolie, finished second, sadly ruining the "No. 1 with a bullet" cliché for headline writers all over the world.

7 Old hat
The average age of people watching the five major TV networks hit 50 last year. It's gotten so skewed that Barbara Walters recently earned the new nickname "whippersnapper."

8 Safety dance
By now you've probably heard Amy Winehouse got into a fight during her latest performance. If it ever happens to you, remember to remain still. (She can't sense motion.)

9 Consumerism
Dominos estimates that we buy 3 billion pizzas a year. The fastest-growing blood type among Americans is actually "pepperoni."

REDHOT Pratt ATTACK

When Mary-Kate Olsen disses him, Spencer disses back

Spencer Pratt isn't pulling any punches in what is becoming a pseudo-feud between him and former high-school acquaintance Mary-Kate Olsen.

"The Hills" star fired back after Olsen told David Letterman last week that Pratt did not have a good temper. She also nodded when Letterman asked if she thought Pratt was "wormy."

Pratt's response?

"I know I've made it in Hollywood when a famous troll is talking about me on 'Letterman,'" he told usmagazine.com.

"I forgive her, though," he said. "She's had to go through life as the less-cute twin, which must be tough."

Harsh!

PARKER

In NYC ... again

In "Sex and the City," Sarah Jessica Parker played a single woman navigating life and love in New York.

But now that the show—and movie—are over, she's moving on to play ... a single woman living in New York.

Parker is in talks to star in "The Ivy Chronicles," according to The Hollywood Reporter. The twist is that Parker's character, Ivy, is coming off a divorce and the loss of her high-powered job. She eventually starts a business helping women get their kids into elite kindergartens. (Decidedly un-"Sex and the City"-like.)

Feeling punchy?

Apparently Amy Winehouse packed a punch with more than her singing Saturday at the U.K.'s Glastonbury music festival.

After taking the stage, the troubled singer climbed down into the pit and ended up scuffling briefly with a reveler. It was unclear what sparked the altercation, but witnesses say a fan tried to grab Winehouse, according to The Associated Press.

That hiccup aside, Winehouse sang for about an hour in front of an estimated crowd of 80,000—this after surprising fans Friday by making her scheduled performance at a special birthday concert for Nelson Mandela.

You know you've fallen on hard times when just showing up is considered a step in the right direction.

Jen and John's jolly good shows

Jennifer Aniston and John Mayer have taken their romance overseas.

She was spotted at two of the musician's gigs in London this weekend. On Friday she sat with the crowd at London's Brixton Academy venue for Mayer's show. And on Saturday she stood quietly backstage and snapped pictures of Mayer during his performance at the Hard Rock Calling festival in Hyde Park, according to people.com.

The couple both have been busy working abroad. Last week they got together in Amsterdam, where Mayer was touring and Aniston promoted her new movie "Marley and Me."

Looks like Johnifer is a global phenomenon now.

Eat, drink and be married

What do former "American Idol" standout Ruben Studdard and "Saturday Night Live" alum Chris Kattan have in common?

They both got hitched over the weekend, according to reports. Studdard tied the knot Saturday with Surata Zuri McCants at a church near Birmingham, Ala., The Associated Press and The Birmingham News report. There was no singing during the ceremony—just an exchange of vows, prayers and music provided by a string ensemble.

Kattan wed model Sunshine Tutt in Yosemite Valley, Calif., on Saturday, people.com reports.

No word if there was any singing at that shindig.

ROSS

Rick Ross isn't hustlin' to get to the altar.

In an interview with MTV News, the rapper shot down rumors of an engagement to fellow star rapper Foxy Brown, who is featured with him in an item in Hip-Hop Weekly magazine. In fact, Ross wouldn't even comment to MTV on whether he and Foxy are a couple.

"The engagement is just speculation," he said. "I'm married to the money."
